Women dance the night away at Mom Prom

About 50 women had a ladies night out through the Mom Prom held at the Grayling Country Club on Saturday. Women were urged to pull out their old prom dresses, bridesmaid dresses, wedding dresses or thrift store bargains and dance the night away to support the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life. The women raised $1,370 at the Mom Prom to help battle cancer. Above, Mary Jo Oppy, a member of the Relay for Life Team Faith was the Mom Prom queen, while Brittani Ott, from Grayling, was the tackiest dressed for the fund-raiser.

School election date changed

Along with selecting the United States President, voters in Michigan will also pick school board members and decide school funding proposals in November.

The Crawford AuSable School Board last week amended its board by-laws and school board membership rotation to comply with state law.

Public Act 233, which amended the Michigan Election Law, requires school board elections to be held in November in even numbered election years. For the last few years, school board elections have been held in May in odd numbered election years. Before that, school elections were held in June.

The change means the school board position held by Trustee Sandy Enos will be on the Nov. 6 general election ballot for voters decide. Although the election is being moved up one year, the term for the school board seat will remain at six years. Enos plans to run for reelection.

The school district will still have to pay its share of election costs.

Crawford Ausable School District Joe Powers said state lawmakers want to see more people participating at the polls.

"They want a greater voter turnout and that is why the legislature did this," Powers said.

Along with the school board seat, the Crawford AuSable School District's non-homestead property tax levy renewal will be on the ballot. The tax is collected from people who own second homes, businesses and vacation homeowners. The tax generates over $500,000 per year to help fund the schools.

Grayling student wins California hunting trip

by Dan Sanderson
Staff Writer

Writing, hunting and spending time with family allowed a Grayling hunter to bag a trip of a lifetime.

Mallory Hatfield, the daughter of Cheryl and Todd Hatfield, won a writing contest sponsored by Outdoor Life Magazine. Outdoor Life is an outdoors magazine about hunting, fishing, survival and camping. It is a sister magazine of Field & Stream.

The contest, which was called "The Legacy Slam," had youth write an essay describing how hunting was an integral part of their family.

Mallory, age 12, and her sister, Courtney, age 14, submitted essays for the contest.

On the opening days of firearm deer hunting season, the Hatfield family is in the woods.

"Every year, on Nov. 15-16, we always leave those days open so we can go hunting," Mallory said.

Last fall, Mallory bagged a spike horn buck on the second day of deer hunting season. It was the first time she was able to hunt for deer under Michigan's new Mentored Youth Hunting program. The program is designed to introduce youth under the age of 10 to hunting and fishing.

In May, the family heads out to hunt wild turkeys on as many weekdays and weekends they can.

Hunting allows Mallory to bond with her father.

"I like it because it gives me and my dad special time, just me and him," she said.

Mallory also enjoys looking at hunting photographs of her dad, Grandpa Ernie Hatfield, and Great-Grandpa Orval Hatfield, which she described in her winning essay.

It took Mallory a couple days to write and review her essay, which was submitted to Outdoor Life in December.

"I like getting to say what I think, using my imagination and when I know what to write," she said.

Bret Krabill, a sixth grader language arts teacher, said.

Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony

The Crawford AuSable School District will host its sixth Alumni Hall of Fame induction ceremony on Sunday, May 6th at 2 p.m. in the Joseph H. Stripe Auditorium at Grayling High School. The program was developed to honor graduates who have achieved significant success in their careers and to motivate students to set high goals for their own futures.

Since the Alumni Hall of Fame was started in 2004, 64 graduates have been inducted, and this year six more will be added. New inductees include: William Brozo (1972), Joe Elenbaas (1972), Don Elsey (1971), Calvin "Rusty" Gates (1973), Edward Hartwick (1888) and William Weideman (1972).

Michael Delp, a GHS instructor from 1971 to 1984 and now a creative writing instructor at Interlochen Arts Academy, will be the keynote speaker.

To be inducted into the CASD Alumni Hall of Fame, graduates must have achieved one or more of the following: an advanced degree; a significant life achievement, honor or award; or a significant contribution toward improving the lives of others.

"We are proud of our graduates, and our goal is to fill the walls at Grayling High School with graduates who are inducted into the Alumni Hall of Fame," said Joe Powers, CASD superintendent. "Following the awards ceremony, inductees' pictures will be added to the beautiful Alumni Hall of Fame display at the high school. We would like to invite you to join us to honor another group of amazing Crawford AuSable graduates."

If you would like to nominate an alumnus for the 2014 ceremony, please come in to the school board office for an application, or check our website at www.casdk12.net (click on the Alumni Hall of Fame link) for further information.

Property owners, local officials say procedure to project a flood is a dudby Dah Sanderson
Staff Writer

The owners of prime property in Crawford County may face paying for costly flood insurance or land surveys to address flood plain maps established by the federal government earlier this month.

A Flood Insurance Rate Map covering Crawford County was implemented by the Federal Emergency Management Agency on April 17.

Revisions of the maps could impact over 500 property owners who own land on a lake or the AuSable and Manatee Rivers.

If the property has flooded in the past, the property owner would be required to purchase flood insurance to comply with federal regulations.

Adopting the flood plain maps, which covers what is commonly called a 100-year flood, has some Crawford County land owners crying foul.

Julie Clay, who owns a home on the AuSable River, said proper notification and an appeals process were not given to property owners.

"We wouldn't have got as far as we did because people would have been more proactive," Clay said.

In the area where Clay lives, the waters of the AuSable River would have to rise 30 to 50 feet to flood homes. The flood plain maps extend well beyond their homes covering the roads, which lead into the area.

"If we're going to build a flood, let's build an ark,"

Above, property on the AuSable River, which barley covers the vegetation and sandbars, is included in the Flood Insurance Rate Map.

Clay said.

Crawford County has been designated with the highest risk for floods, which in the same rating given to the Gulf States where flooding often occurs due to hurricanes.

"We're 1,200 feet above sea level and we're on a sandpit," Clay said.

Sandra Knight, a deputy associate administrator for mitigation for FEMA, said since base flood elevations were not established for Crawford County, there was no regulatory appeal period for property owners. Knight, however, said that a meeting was held with local officials and an open house was held with the public.

Two areas of concern were raised by local officials, and FEMA revised the maps last August.

Data to establish the flood plain maps was obtained from Intermap, a Denver based company. The maps were based on the use of topographic information.

Crawford County and township officials went to bat for homeowners, especially those considered to be in Special Flood Hazard Areas.

"Due to scale limitations, FEMA cannot detect every rise in terrain and some areas of high ground may be included in Special Flood Hazard Areas," Knight said.

Knight said projected data is the only way FEMA can establish the flood plain maps for a 100-year flood.

"Because a flood of this size occurs at irregular intervals, it is not possible to base the delineation of flood zones on the lack of flooding occurrences in a particular location or flooding occurrences in recent memory," "Rather, FEMA's engineering studies develop a long-term projection of flood risk."

Dave Stephenson, chairman of the Crawford County Board of Commissioners, said local officials remain puzzled on how the maps were adopted without the lack of local input. He said only four county residents attended the FEMA open house last year.

"I wish we had the answer to that because this has been crammed down our throat," Stephenson said of the implementation of the maps. "This, as far I'm concerned, was a done deal."

Now, property owners have only have two options of recourse. They can enter into the National Flood Insurance Program, which offered flood insurance through FEMA. Property owners can also have their land surveyed to obtain a Letter of Map Amendment (LOMA).

Clay and neighboring property owners had their property surveyed last week.

"I've got better things to spend my money on, believe me," Clay said.

Clay's neighbor, Don Maciuk, believes requiring the stringent flood insurance requirements will impact the sale of homes and property values.

"It's going to be a financial hardship and I can see more homes going into foreclosure," Maciuk said.

Marvin Myers, a surveyor from Rowe Professional Services which has a branch office in Grayling, said a LOMA is given a hard look by federal officials.

"They scrutinize your determination very careful and how you developed that," Myers said.

Myers was at the Grayling Charter Township Board's regular monthly meeting last week, when two resolutions were passed and an ordinance was changed allowing township residents to purchase flood insurance.

Prior to the implementation of the flood plain maps, Myers said few property owners requested flood surveys prior to construction.

Areas, such as around Houghton Lake in Roscommon County where homes and roads often flood, would require flood insurance, Myers said.

"The only thing you can do there is elevate the house," Myers said.

Knight said buying flood insurance should be considered by all property owners who live near water even if they can prove their property is not in a flood plain.

"Even if the designation has been established, it does mean the risk of flooding has been eliminated," she said. "Flooding also occurs in areas designated as moderate or minimal flood risk zones. Therefore, FEMA recommends flood insurance coverage, even if it is not required by law or a lender."

Clay said Crawford County property owners should not rule out mounting a class-action lawsuit against FEMA based on their Constitutional property rights. Provisions in the National Flood Insurance Act require the federal government to reimburse survey costs for property owners considered to be in a flood plain.

"It's very frustrating when this is going on with your property and you have no say," Clay said.

Mallory Hatfield's Outdoor Life magazine's winning essay

Please describe your favorite hunting experience in 150 words or less:

This year I got to hunt deer for the first time and we were sitting in a blind behind my grandpa's house and on the second day I shot a spike horn. I was hunting with my dad and grandpa and the first day we did not see much - a few does and fawns and a coyote. Then the next night we were sitting in the blind and out came this spike and my dad handed me the gun and told me to get ready. I got the gun up and saw the deer but had to wait for a good shot. Finally the deer moved and I shot and it fell right there. I was so happy and excited my heart was beating real fast the whole time but dad says this is normal when you are hunting and see the animal you want to shoot.

This contest is intended to celebrate the tradition of hunting between generations. In 250 words please describe an experience in which you introduced hunting to a member of your family or were taken hunting for the first time by a family member.

My dad has always hunted and when I was younger he got me a bow and a BB gun. He would always take me out and let me shoot with him. Then when hunting season came he would take me hunting with him and even let me take my bow or gun just like he did. When I got old enough to hunt on my own he was always there for me and helped me all the time. I got my first turkey and deer when was 11 years old. I love hunting and fishing and going in the woods with my dad and grandpa. Some of the kids pick on me because I am a girl and like to do these things but that's OK. If they knew how fun it was they would be doing it too. I even have my hunting clothes and calls now and got new under armor for Christmas. I love getting new hunting stuff. I also like looking at dad's old pictures. He even has some of grandpa as a kid hunting with his dad. Grandpa looks a little funny. He still wears the old red wool plaid clothes. Dad says he will never change and will always wear that outfit. Dad says I am a good shot and a good hunter. I plan on doing it for a long time.

and math teacher at the Grayling Middle School, said Mallory's excitement about hunting came through clear in her writing.

"She is very detail oriented," Krabill said. "When she has a subject matter that she knows a lot about, she does a good job putting the detail in her writing and puts fourth the effort that makes a strong writing piece."

Winning the contest means Mallory and Todd will travel to the historic Tejohn Ranch in California, which is the largest contiguous expanse of private land in the state with 422 acres. They will go on the trip this weekend, April 26-29.

Located about 60 miles north of Los Angeles, Tejohn Ranch was founded in 1843 by Gen. Edward Fitzgerald Beale, a historic figure in early California.

While on the hunt,

Mallory and Todd will hunt for turkey, hogs and varmints. In addition to winning the trip, Mallory will receive six guns and a $1,000 worth of clothing and boots from Cabela's.

Mallory is looking forward to her first hunting trip outside of the community.

"I've never got to go on these kind of trips before," she said. "I've only hunted in Grayling."

Krabill, who is an avid hunter, is tickled that Mallory used her writing skills learned in the classroom and real world experiences to win the contest.

"Because of that, she's winning an experience that most people would love to have and she's getting it because of writing and for a sixth grader, that's pretty impressive," Krabill said.

Todd was informed that Mallory was a finalist in the essay contest and a week later, learned she was the winner while she was on spring break.

"I was quite impressed," Todd said. "I thought it was like winning the lotto."

Amanda McNally, spokeswoman for Outdoor Life, said 3,000 entries were submitted for "The Legacy Slam," which is one of the more popular contests for the magazine.

McNally said the staff was quite impressed with Mallory's essay.

"They're really looking forward to meeting her and her dad and showing them a good time," McNally said. "We're really glad that the hunting tradition is being passed down in Mallory's family and are looking forward to seeing that out in the field."

A video of the hunting outing will be on Outdoor Life's website around the end of May or the first part of June, McNally said.

Krabill said Mallory returned to school after spring break and was just as excited as she was last fall after she shot the buck as she told him about the winning contest.

"It was about all I could do not to jump up and down with her," Krabill said.

School election date changed

Powers said school officials are concerned with having the tax measure on the ballot during a presidential election year along with other proposals that may be on the ballot.

"I think the legislature is trying to do way too much as far as schools," Powers said. "It would be nice if they let the local community control the schools like they used to."

In addition to changing the date of the school election, Powers said the school

"This legislature is changing law very rapidly as far as schools," Powers said.

Almanack

More business tax cuts headed our way

IT SURE LOOKS like the legislative skids are greased for even more tax cuts to be shoveled off to Michigan businesses in the near future.

Republican leadership in the state House has signaled the fast track for a batch of bills to reduce the personal property tax.

Michigan businesses would be the main beneficiary. Local governments would suffer the ills.

According to a description of the tax package in a recent Associated Press report, tax exemption starting in 2013 "would be given to businesses and industrial and commercial personal property with a taxable value less than $40,000," and eliminating the tax for 75 percent of industrial and commercial tax payers.

The relief for businesses would add up to about $470 million per year. That's on top of the $1.8 billion per year in lowered taxes business pay the state as result of business tax law overhaul at the beginning of Gov.

Rick Snyder's administration 16 months ago.

This time, however, the direct dollar cost of business tax relief comes from local units of government, not from the state.

Personal property taxes are levied and collected by local government collection units, just as taxes on real estate are, and the money stays local to help pay for local programs.

The new state package includes no repayment plan to cities, townships, libraries and schools for any lost dollars.

GOV. SNYDER IS solidly behind removing the personal property tax on business, citing the same rallying cry behind both the original Snyder business tax relief and the current assault on the personal property tax.

Lower taxes will help create new Michigan jobs, which will stimulate the Michigan economy, which will provide higher personal income and an improving standard of living, which will result in higher state revenue from both businesses and individuals as everything else falls into place.

In the meantime, tax spenders must continue to cinch in their belts. Cutting state support for local governments and programs has been one of the Snyder administration's primary routes to successfully balance the state budget for the last two years.

Money from personal property taxes now goes directly to cities, townships, libraries, schools and other local governments on business and industrial property located within their jurisdictions.

For many local jurisdictions, revenue from the personal property tax is significant and its loss will be equally significant.

The Snyder tax proposals contain no guaranteed ways to replace money and services lost to local governments, and their leaders are vocal about their fears.

State aid to local programs has been cut by $4.2

billion during the last 10 years, according to the Michigan Municipal League (MML), which in turn has brought reductions in police and fire services, park maintenance and personnel; local schools are getting 3 percent less from the state than they did 10 years ago, which has brought teacher layoffs, closed buildings, and higher student fees, according to the Associated Press story.

TO PROTECT local government from the vagaries of future legislatures, the Municipal League has proposed a constitutional amendment requiring the state to replace money lost to local units through removal of the local tax on business equipment.

The fears of local governments are justified by the uneven handling of state-local financing over the years. Funding promised by state law can be and has been adjusted by the legislature at will, while funding guaranteed by the constitution can be changed only by another popular statewide vote.

Similar amendments pushed by special interest groups – and in this case local government organizations are special interest groups, as are business groups pushing either for or against these changes – often aim to solve an immediate problem by restricting how state government can operate; but in the long run, many of these same amendments, approved at one time, hamper good government operations at another time.

For example, the so-called Headlee Amendment was approved in 1978 to establish limits on taxes imposed by the legislature and units of local government, but may well have outlived its usefulness. After 34 years of recurring financial crises, the only way to get rid of Headlee restrictions is another constitutional amendment.

STIRRING IDLE thoughts about taxes and benefits into the mythical Almanack caldron, a couple of wandering ideas rose to the top:

• If relieving a tax on $40,000 worth of manufacturing equipment is going to be the tipping point on whether a potential job producer locates in Michigan, I'm not sure it would provide the kind of job which would help alleviate the woes that challenge our state's economy.

• In the old days, unions identified their bargaining position in three words: "More! More! More!" meaning higher wages, more vacation time, more job perks of all kinds. Today the position of business 'bargaining' with government seems also to be identified in three words: "Less! Less! Less!" meaning less taxes, less taxes, less taxes.

Shocked to find all decorations at gravesite gone

To the editor:

Today my family and I received one of the worst shocks a surviving wife and child can get.

My daughter and I have spent the last week fixing my husband's grave for the summer. We used a cross that was next to my husband's casket and decorated it with his picture and silk flowers, red, white and blue because he was a Veteran. We put his picture on the cross next to his grave for our special needs granddaughter, so she can relate to and visit her grandpa's grave and give her a better understanding of where he is.

Our granddaughter comes from out of town so I stopped by tonight to double check that everything was ready for her visit, and was absolutely shocked to find all of his decorations gone. Even the flowers in the vase which is attached to the gravestone were gone.

We do not understand, as everything was fresh and new for spring and summer. It was very obvious they were not winter decorations.

What happened to all the flowers and to my husband's picture? Is my husband's picture at the bottom of some trash can or the land fill? What will I say to my precious granddaughter?

If there is a certain procedure to putting things on our loved ones gravesite, I would think for those who are not familiar with those rules, because we just lost our loved one recently, there would be a much better way of notifying the public or at least if it looks new, put those decorations behind the building to give is a chance to retrieve them.

Great night out

To the editor:

The "Men Who Cook" event makes for a most enjoyable evening. Hats off to whoever started this unique and popular happening.

However, it could stand a little tweaking. Last year there were 11 chefs, all preparing their speciality. Now I ask you, who can eat 11 different types of food at one setting? Not to mention, there is not enough room on a dinner plate to put all the food on.

The bigger problem yet is that a lot of good food is wasted because some people will simply not eat some types of food and other may even be allergic to certain foods.

There is a simple solution. First, print a program featuring each chef and a description of the food that he has prepared. This will give us attending, while waiting for our turn in the food line something to look at, plan, talk about to others and decide what we want on our plate.

Second, print a menu listing each dish and chef with a number. Then going through the line you could pass on items you had decided you simply did not want, and if put on your plate would be wasted. Also, voting for your favorite chef and dish you like the best would be easier if done by numbers. However it is done, I will be there.

Sad to know that donation canisters around town have been stolen

To the editor:

I am sure many of you have noticed donations containers at check outs/cash registers, in some of our businesses around town. The ones you can place your change in if you want to, to help different people and places. I know I have done this and it has made me feel good helping in this way and every penny does help and is very much appreciated.

Your change has helped the Museum survive with some of their maintenance and The Baby to Toddler Closet has been able to purchase items they could not otherwise purchase. The Guys against Cancer boxes money goes to technology to cure cancer and there are many more donation containers that I have not named.

Recently the three I have named above had one each of their containers stolen from businesses in Grayling. Maybe there have been more. I only know of these three.

It makes me very sad this happened, because of our economy this was one way people could give and feel good.

Federal curb of animal antibiotic meant to protect human health

by Jennifer Kalish
Capital News Service

LANSING — For the first time, federal authorities are banning an antibiotic in livestock because of fears that some human diseases are becoming resistant to it.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ban on cephalosporin will apply only to uses not specified by the drug's label.

"Most antibiotics were developed for use in humans in the first place," said Steve Halstead, the state veterinarian at the Department of Agriculture and Rural Development. Many have other uses not stated on their labels, often due to a lack of research funding to ensure the safety of those uses.

Cephalosporin is most commonly used to treat human infections of the skin, respiratory tract and urinary tract. It is also used on cattle, swine and poultry to promote growth by killing internal bacteria.

However, the drug is more commonly used to treat infections in dogs and cats than in food-producing animals. Because of its widespread use in veterinary offices, the ban won't apply to pets.

The FDA said the ban is intended to preserve the drug's effectiveness on people.

But Murray Borrello, director of the environmental studies program at Alma College, said the FDA should have gone further.

"The ban of cephalosporin is probably a good start in my opinion, but it's not nearly as far as we need to go," said Borrello, who researches the prevalence of antibiotic-resistant bacteria around industrial farms near Alma.

He's found more bacteria in the air around industrial farms that are resistant to the antibiotic tetracycline than in areas further from them.

The constant addition of antibiotics to the feed of those animals causes a significant rise in bacteria resistance, Borrello said.

He compared that result to people taking antibiotics when they can do without them, thus increasing the risk of a more serious infection later.

Tetracycline is the most widely used antibiotic on animals, Borrello said. Since cephalosporin isn't as popular in animal agriculture, the FDA ban will probably make only a dent in reducing drug-resistant bacteria from farms.

Food-producing animals account for 80 percent of antibiotic use in the United States, according to the FDA. Widespread use of antibiotics can also create a higher risk for foodborne illnesses from bacteria like E. coli and MRSA.

However, animal use isn't the only reason for the rise in dangerous bacteria, according to Borrello.

"The human population is generating its own superbugs simply because we are taking so many antibiotics," he said. "So we're killing the easy bugs, and what is left are the bacteria that are resistant."

Still, Halstead said, the federal ban makes a big statement.

"It's a step, and it's an indication that the FDA is taking antimicrobial use seriously," he said. "They want to get the attention of animal farmers and large animal veterinarians."

Turkey hunt for veterans slated

A veteran's turkey hunt will be held on May 14 and 21, at the Michigan National Guard's Fort Custer Training Center.

The goal of the event, which is hosted by the National Turkey Federation and the Michigan National Guard, is to allow special needs veterans to experience the joys of hunting.

The event will bring veterans and guides together that represent various military and local community agencies. The hunt will allow the veterans to spend the day at Fort Custer with a guide who will assist them with any needs during the hunt.

"This hunt is a way for us to give back to the veterans who have given their all to their country," said Jason Allen, deputy director of the Michigan Department of Military and Veterans Affairs. "This event is an ongoing effort to show our respect for our service members past and present."

The event will also be open to the public on both days and can accommodate up to 20 people on both days.

Special needs veterans interested in applying to participate in this event can contact Jonathan Edgerly, event coordinator from the Turkeyville Tom's Chapter of the National Turkey Federation, at (269) 731-6571 to sign up.

The Bible Speaks

Unity from Holy Scriptures

One of God's perfect attributes is unity. God's Word is the source of Christian unity in His church. The result of this unity is likemindedness in Romans 15:5: "5Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one toward another according to Christ Jesus. The context for Christian Unity was revealed in the previous verse: "4For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope." Therefore, the God who guides us in learning, patience, comfort and hope through His Holy Scriptures also produces in us as Bible-believers a unity of faith.

There is confusion in unity today as God's Word is being abandoned, and in its place unity is being sought through ecumenical or organizational movements like the National or World Council of Churches. These organizations seek to expand their unity even to include other world religions, or idolatry. The Bible establishes one religious organization, the local New Testament church. Another confusion in unity today is Charismatic unity based upon a shared religious experience. For one to interpret the Bible through religious experience would be like a scientist trying to examine a microscope by looking through a bug.

The God of the Bible is the wellspring of Christian unity. "5Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one toward another according to Christ Jesus." The unity of likemindedness comes from learning and trusting God's Holy Word in His Scriptures, and God's eternal Word incarnate, His Son. Therefore, God gives us likeminded unity by faith in the person, work, and word of our Lord Jesus Christ. The words of Jesus confirmed this unity as exclusive in John 14:6: "6Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me." Jesus reminded us in John 10:1 he is the only door and those who claim other ways to heaven are trying to steal and rob from God way.

The God of Holy Scriptures is also the only person to be worshipped in Christian unity in Romans 15:6: "6That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ." "One mind and one mouth" speaks of unity in belief and confession. "3Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. 4There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; 5One Lord, one faith, one baptism, 6One God and Father of all..." (Eph. 4:3-5).

The God of Holy Scriptures gives the welcome into true Christian unity in Romans 15:7: "7Wherefore receive ye one another, as Christ also received us to the glory of God." "3If any man teach otherwise, and consent not to wholesome words, even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godliness; 4He is proud, knowing nothing, but dotting about questions and strifes of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings.... from such withdraw thyself." More songbirds found with high mercury levels

by Sam Inglot

Capital News Service

LANSING — Scientists are finding more Great Lakes birds with high levels of mercury in them.

A recent report by the Biodiversity Research Institute says the increased levels are found particularly in songbirds that rely on insects for food.

Aquatic birds still face the greatest risk for mercury exposure, said Joe Kaplan, a researcher with Common Coast Research & Conservation, a nonprofit loon research group based in Hancock.

Two factors impact how mercury affects a bird, he said: the amount of mercury it's exposed to and the bird's sensitivity to the metal.

Loons will always be exposed to more mercury than songbirds because of their fish diet, Kaplan said. However, loons have a low sensitivity to mercury compared to their woodland-dwelling counterparts.

Until recently, mercury contamination was seen as a problem for water-dwelling birds with fish-based diets. Studies of mercury in loons have been done for decades.

In Michigan, bald eagles, common loons and trumpeter swans are the only birds routinely tested for metals like mercury, lead and selenium, said Tom Cooley, a wildlife biologist at the Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Disease Laboratory.

Swans, Cooley said, are exposed to mercury because they nose around in the bottom sediments of lakes and rivers looking for aquatic plants to munch on.

Using a fluoroscope, or as Cooley calls it, "a poor man's X-ray," biologists scan the livers of dead birds that have been brought into the laboratory.

The aim, he said, is to determine what kind of adverse effects or behavioral changes the metals may induce in the birds.

Songbirds have not been heavily studied for mercury exposure, said Allyson Jackson, manager of the forest bird program at the Biodiversity Research Institute. The Maine-based organization researches emerging threats to wildlife and ecosystems.

Higher levels of mercury can cause brain damage, she said. And at low levels there tends to be a decline in reproductive success.

Kaplan said the reason songbirds have elevated exposure could be that they eat insects associated with aquatic environments. And unlike loons, they may be unable to release the mercury through their feathers.

Loons get rid of mercury through their feathers, like humans do through their hair. But for birds with high sensitivity, he said, that's probably not the case.

Mercury can be particularly harmful when birds migrate because migration is the most physically demanding time in a bird's life, Kaplan said.

The study said migration accounts for nearly 75 percent of annual mortality rates among some songbirds.

Feathers stop growing during this time, and birds must complete a migration before they can molt and release some of the mercury.

Depending on species sensitivity, that's when most problems occur.

The institute said research into the problems of songbirds with high levels of mercury is an on-going process.

Great Lakes bird species vary in the degree of sensitivity to mercury.

High Sensitivity - American kestrel, white ibis, snowy egret, osprey tricolored heron.

Moderate Sensitivity - clapper rail, tree swallow, common grackle, ring-necked pheasant, royal tern, sandhill crane, Anhinga brown pelican, Canada goose

Low Sensitivity - Hooded merganser, laughing gull, lesser scaup, common loon, mallard, double-crested cormorant

Organ trafficking raises concerns amid donor shortage

by Jennifer Chen

Capital News Service

LANSING — Organ trafficking is an illegal but thriving trade in the world, according to Monir Moniruzzaman, a Michigan State University anthropologist.

He retells the story he heard from Dildar, a 32-year-old Bangladeshi who sold one of his kidneys. "When a fox catches a chicken, the little one cries. I was the chicken and the buyer was the fox. On the day of the operation, I felt like a sacrificial cow purchased for slaughtering."

For a year-long research project, Moniruzzaman hired an organ broker as an informant and an organ seller as a research assistant. They helped him interview 33 kidney sellers in Dhaka, the capital of Bangladesh, in 2005.

"Their activities frequently go unrecorded and remain concealed due to illegality," he said.

Poverty forced those people sell their body parts, he said.

He said buyers promised that operations are 100 percent safe and would be performed by world-renowned specialists.

The sellers also were promised receive "huge money," about $1,300 for one kidney. In fact, they received only at most $300.

"Organ selling is illegal in every country in the world," Moniruzzaman said.

In his research, he found two Americans involved in the organ trade, both as recipients. One woman, around 50, from Washington, D.C., went to Bangladesh with a broker and found a young man, about 23, willing to sell his kidney. They flew to south India for the surgery.

The other recipient was a Bangladesh-born American from New York.

Federal law allows the government to reimburse living donors for expenses and offers grants to increase preservation and compatibility. However, it is still illegal to sell or pay for organs.

According to the Michigan Secretary of State, organ donor registrations were 89 percent higher in February 2012 than in the same month last year.

However, there is still a large shortage of organ donors.

Currently 113,828 people await an organ transplant in the United States, including 2,977 in Michigan, according to the United Network for Organ Sharing, a nonprofit organization in Richmond, Va., that manages the U.S. organ allocation system.

Joel Newman, the network assistant director of communications, said, "There is a great shortage of donated organs. The registries are very important in promoting advance consent for organ donation."

But it may be many years between a donation decision and when that person dies under conditions that would allow donation, Newman said.

He said many people die under circumstances that prevent organ donation, although donation of tissue such as corneas, skin and bone could still be possible.

According to the World Health Organization, the shortage is virtually a universal problem that led to development of the international organ trade.

Also, Moniruzzaman said, not only for brokers, recipients but also doctor who did such operations."

Immunizing more adults could save lives, dollars

by Saodat Asanova-Taylor
Capital News Service

LANSING — Failure to fully immunize Michigan adults has a staggering impact on job makers and the state economy, according to a new report by the Michigan Primary Care Consortium.

The report, "The Business Case for Full Adult Immunization in Michigan," closely researched the impact of diseases such as pneumonia and influenza. The results show about $495 million in annual economic costs, including emergency room visits, specialty medical care, lost productivity and absenteeism.

According to the consortium, for every dollar spent on adult immunization, $18.40 is saved in the workplace and on hospital stays, physician visits and more expensive and lengthy treatments for diseases that would have been easily prevented with vaccination.

Joseph Fortuna, vice president of the consortium, said vaccine-preventable diseases like pneumonia and the flu continue to ravage adults across the state.

"It results in the need for expensive treatment and hospital visits while driving down workplace productivity. Adult immunizations can save lives and boost the economy, but only if they are used," Fortuna said.

The report shows that in Michigan annually, direct costs including unnecessary emergency room and physician visits cost more than $245 million. Lost productivity, missed work days and other indirect costs account for nearly $250 million.

According to Fortuna, the consortium conducts training for health care professionals, business and industry leaders and government officials, on strategies to increase adult immunization.

"It is a cultural failure. We think that vaccination is important only for children, but adult immunization is equally important and something government, physicians, health advocates and providers need to set as priority," he said.

Michigan doesn't have a specific adult immunization infrastructure similar to its Vaccine for Children program, according to the Department of Community Health.

"We need to pay greater attention to emphasize the importance of adult immunization. Health care providers need to use the best ways to try to demonstrate the economic and health impact of vaccination for their patients," Fortuna said.

According to Angela Minicuci, public information officer at Community Health, lack of public awareness and providers' recommendations for vaccinations result in many missed opportunities.

"Adults simply aren't aware of the vaccines that they need to stay healthy. Most specialists who are not primary care providers don't always communicate the importance of receiving immunization during the patient's routine visits," Minicuci said.

In addition, some adults know about vaccinations but believe that the vaccines can harm their health.

Russell Bush, medical director of the Lapeer County Health Department, said misinformation about vaccines occurs due to lack of education.

"There is not enough of a marketing campaign on adult immunization. The cases that record side effects as a result of vaccination don't mean immunization is not useful," he said.

"We need to educate people on the benefits of preventive vaccines," Bush said.

Bush recommends that every adult receive vaccination that protects them from diseases such as pneumonia, influenza, whooping cough, tetanus and hepatitis.

Bush said the state should concentrate more on increasing funding for health marketing campaigns and making vaccines more available.

Lack of insurance coverage is also a barrier to immunization, according to Community Health.

Suzette Daly, a nurse at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, said the insurance deductible for vaccinations is high and some people think it is not worth it. The agency serves Antrim, Emmet, Charlevoix and Otsego counties.

"Insurance companies should work a better way to provide access to adult vaccination. It can save money, both for the companies and their clients," she said.

In 2009, medical officers at the agency noticed a rapid increase of whooping cough among adults and a few cases in children who were directly exposed by adults. They provided vaccine to health providers and conducted education and training for the community, and by 2012 significantly reduced the number of sick people.

"Vaccination is the best investment in our health. I encourage our state health agencies, insurance companies, local health care providers and communities to work together to make the vaccines available for everyone and to build strategies to overcome barriers for adult immunization," Daly said.

Currently, Community Health provides a limited amount of vaccine for adults, 19 and older who have no insurance or whose insurance doesn't cover any cost of the vaccine.

More long-term care options pushed

by Xinjuan Deng
Capital News Service

LANSING — Michigan can improve long-term care by providing more home and community-based services as alternatives to nursing home care, AARP Michigan says, but an industry group cautions that nursing facilities are crucial to the state's health care system.

According to the AARP, 35 states spend fewer Medicaid dollars on nursing home care than Michigan. Those states' services include aides and nurses who visit seniors in their homes.

Lisa Cooper, manager of advocacy at AARP Michigan, said, "Michigan currently spends only 21.6 percent of our long-term care budget for older adults and people with disabilities on home and community-based services. We spend 78.4 percent of our long-term care dollars on nursing home care."

The report said nursing homes are expensive and becoming more so. In 2011, $80,300 was the median annual cost of a semi-private room in a Michigan facility.

Cooper said, "If Michigan were to re-balance our system like other states to provide relatively more home and community-based services — which is the setting that people overwhelmingly want — we could save taxpayer dollars and create a system that is economically sustainable."

However, David LaLumia, president of the Health Care Association of Michigan, said his organization supports the entire long-term care continuum but the public should realize the major role nursing facilities play in ensuring quality care options.

"Caring for more than 40,000 Michigan residents each day, nursing facilities play an integral role in our health care system. Medical care should be provided in the right setting, in the right place, at the right value for an individual's medical needs," LaLumia said.

As the state struggles with budget problems, AARP wants to move the discussion of long-term care toward alternatives to nursing homes.

"A long-term care system that begins with the individual and helps people stay in their homes and communities can prevent a costly and unnecessary stay in a nursing home," said Robert Kolt, AARP Michigan president.

An AARP survey found that an overwhelming majority of Michigan seniors prefer remaining in their homes as long as possible. By one estimate in the report, community-based services, on average, can save $57,338 per participant per year.

Rebalancing the system would provide more substantial support for unpaid family caregivers, who provide most such services. In Michigan, an estimated one of every seven adults cares for an adult relative, according to the report.

But LaLumia said, "There is no way we are going to meet the demand of the future simply by 'rebalancing.'"

He said it is a great challenge to meet consumers' personalized demands.

"Currently, our demographics are dramatically changing with baby boomers turning 65 at the rate of 10,000 per day," he said.

The Department of Community Health has five programs that offer in-home services.

For example, through Home and Community-Based Waiver Services, adults who meet income and asset criteria can receive Medicaid-covered services like those provided by nursing homes, but can stay in their own home or another residential setting.

That program is available in Alcona, Alpena, Arenac, Crawford, Cheboygan, Iosco, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle and Roscommon counties.

Tom Czerwinski, executive director at Area Agency on Aging of Western Michigan Inc. in Grand Rapids, said the average cost for a MI Choice Medicaid Waiver client is $52 per day across the state. The average nursing home cost is $175 per day.

MI Choice Medicaid Waiver is one of the programs offered by the department.

He said there are more than 7,500 people are on waiting lists statewide for the program.

Czerwinski said there are challenges to helping people transition from a nursing home back to the community.

"The major obstacle is housing. For many people who no longer have a home to live in or can't afford an apartment. Low-income subsidized housing is necessary for many nursing home transition clients, he said.

"Clients also need an array of home care services to meet their needs, the most important part in building a long term system is to always keep the client's needs the priority," he said.

LaLumia said, "Long-term care today is a continuum of services — a range of options that have evolved over the last decade to reflect both consumer demand and public policy change.

"The continuum now includes: skilled nursing and rehabilitation, assisted living, adult foster care and homes for the aged, home health or home and community-based waiver services.

He said each plays an essential role to meet the varied needs of individuals, and one is not a substitute for the others.

Recreation Fun

Anglers are gearing up for the upcoming trout fishing season, which officially begins on Saturday, April 28. The first day of trout fishing season will also mark the beginning of walleye, pike and muskellunge fishing seasons.

The upper AuSable River and the Manistee River systems – two of the most stable systems in the United States – both offer catches of native brook, brown and rainbow trout to the discerning angler. Fishing regulations vary between sections on the rivers, with some areas designated for "flies only" and several miles of the AuSable River for "catch and release." The majority of the waters, however, are open to any type of fishing, including flies, hardware and bait.

Hatch activity generally begins in early March with the onset of spring and the emerging Blackstones. Hendricksons are usually hatching by the opening day of trout season. Afternoon hatches, with little pressure from other river users, makes early to mid-May a popular time for many fly fishers. Other early season hatches include the Little Mahogany, Little Black Caddis and Blue Winged Olives.

By mid-May, most hatches and spinner falls occur in late afternoon. The Sulfur hatch begins in late May and lasts about two weeks. The first week of June is a popular time on area streams as the Brown Drake hatch occurs. Hatches continue through May and June, generally culminating with the "Hex" hatch, which is the big Michigan Mayfly, the Hexagenia limbata. This hatch brings the fly fishers in large numbers as it is the time when trophy fish regularly surface-feed.

Crawford County – like many other areas in the state of Michigan – has a variety of pathways and trails for bicyclists of all ages and skill levels. Bicycling, a healthy way to spend an active day in the outdoors, gives participants an opportunity to get some exercise while viewing some of what nature has to offer.

"There is no better bicycling country than Michigan's scenic and rolling two peninsulas located in the heart of the Great Lakes basin. Plenty of trails and pathways challenge bicyclists of all ages, types and skill levels," the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) states on its Web site. "Michigan's total coastline length is second only to Alaska. Michigan also has 11,000 lakes and 36,000 miles of rivers and streams, which puts bicyclists, no matter where they are in the state, within 20 minutes of water. Autumn color, fishing, swimming and boating are all within close range of the bicyclist. Bikes are allowed on all paved and non-paved roads in all 97 state parks and recreation areas. Bikes may also be operated on designated bike paths."

"Mountain bike trails, however, are different from bike paths. While bike paths are paved or hard surfaced and tend to be quite smooth, mountain bike trails tend to consist of a more rugged terrain, characterized by a natural soil surface, narrower trail width, changing slopes and gradients. These distinctions should be noted before you prepare to take a trip to one of the state parks or state forest pathways and use the mountain bike trails. Please stay on marked mountain bike trails when riding your bike and please use trail courtesy when on the trails," the DNR states on its Web site.

The Grayling area has both trails and pathways for bicyclists. Hanson Hills Recreation Area has an extensive trail system for those who prefer natural terrain. The Grayling Bicycle Turnpike, a pathway that runs from Hanson Hills to Grayling High School to Hartwick Pines State Park, gives bicyclists an opportunity to ride on a smooth, paved surface.

Hartwick Pines, like many other parks in the state of Michigan, has several trails for bicycling. Hartwick Pines State Park's trails include: Aspen Trail (3 miles), Weary Legs Trail (7.5 miles) and Deer Run Trail (5 miles). A list of trails and pathways at other state parks and state forest campgrounds is available at the DNR's Web site: www.michigan.gov/parksandtrails.

"The DNR is committed to promoting responsible mountain biking. Our goal is to find the appropriate balance between access and natural resource protection," the DNR states on its Web site.

The upper AuSable and Manistee rivers in the Grayling area offer some of the finest canoeing in the midwestern United States. These cool, clear, world-renowned trout streams move along at a steady, gentle rate through mixed pine and hardwood forests.

A day on the river is a great way for families to enjoy northern Michigan's great outdoors. It is not unusual to see deer, mink, otter, beavers, ducks, wild turkeys, a great blue heron or, occasionally, a bald eagle, while on your canoe trip.

Area canoe liveries offer river day-trips ranging in length from two to six hours, as well as overnight canoeing and camping trips. Many families pack a picnic lunch for their day on the river. For those considering an overnight trip, there are state forest campgrounds strategically located at various points along the rivers. Canoe liveries will help you plan your trip, if needed.

The AuSable and Manistee are "Class 1" rivers, with no "whitewater" or rapids. Canoeists can generally maneuver around the rivers' natural logjams and "sweepers" (trees that hang out low over the river) without too much trouble. The water averages three to four feet deep in most places. Canoeing season usually begins in May and runs until late September or early October. Some liveries will accommodate customers at anytime of the year. Each livery has its own rates, requirements and restrictions. Summer weekends can be very busy at area canoe liveries, so advance reservations are recommended.

Guests are encouraged to dress appropriately. It's a good idea to bring an extra sweatshirt, rain gear, or a change of clothing in a secure, plastic bag. Visitors should also remember sunscreen and lightweight, long-sleeved shirts to provide sun protection on hot summer days.

All liveries ask that canoeists do not bring glass bottles or styrofoam coolers. "We have a wonderful natural resource in our rivers," according to one local canoe livery. "They belong to all of us and must be respected and taken care of by all of us. Keep litter in your canoes and use the landings provided so this wonderful canoeing experience can be shared by all."

What is disc golf? It's a growing sport. Players throw discs from designated tee areas into round metal baskets that have chains hanging inside. The chains stop the disc and allow it to fall into the cage's basket (the "hole"). Like regular golf, the goal is to get the disc into the basket in as few throws as possible; also, like regular golf, each hole has a designated par score. Players use different discs depending on distance; some discs are "drivers" for long distance, some are "putters" for short distance, and some are designed for middle distance. It's also possible to just use one disc for the entire round.

Hanson Hills Recreation Area in Grayling has two courses: a hilly 19-hole Professional Disc Golf Association (PDGA) course that sends players up and down a variety of inclines and terrain, and the new Pine Knoll course, completed last year, which is mostly flat but sends players through forest areas with a variety of obstacles. The Pine Knoll course can be played as a nine-hole course or as an 18-hole course since it has two different sets of cement tee pads – one short, one long – both of which offer different angles at the baskets.

Disc golf is free to play at Hanson Hills Recreation Authority (GRA) officials said approximately 40 people played the courses at Hanson Hills every day. (GRA is the governing body for Hanson Hills.) According to GRA, it takes about 30 minutes to play nine holes at the Pine Knoll course and about an hour to play 18. The PDGA course takes longer.

Disc golf is a sport for people of all ages. "Young people, old people, men, women – that's what we wanted," said one of the disc golf tournament organizers last year. "Disc golf is perfect for people who don't have a lot of bucks and want to get (some) exercise."

Hanson Hills has three disc golf tournaments slated for this year: Rotary Spring Disc Golf Fundraiser (Saturday, May 19), Rotary Fall Flinger Disc Golf Fundraiser (Saturday, August 18), Hanson Hills Open Disc Golf Tournament (Saturday, September 8).

Northern Michigan has a plethora of golf course options, including three close to home for Crawford County residents. The county has two public golf courses within its limits – Fox Run Country Club and Grayling Country Club – plus Forest Dunes, "a membership oriented club."

The three area country clubs contain golf courses which are playable for all levels of golfers. Any player of any talent ability can play the courses Crawford County has to offer and have fun.

The three golf courses also contain some challenging hazards to make each round interesting. Grayling Country Club features standard bunkers and water. Fox Run's hazards include marshes and ponds. The Forest Dunes course is edged by pine forest on several holes and includes exposed sand and underbrush. Fox Run Country Club – The 18-hole, par 72 Fox Run golf course is cut through the natural setting of numerous hardwoods. The holes follow the natural terrain and go with the lay of the land.

Fox Run Country Club is located one-half mile west of I-75, off of exit 251, on Four Mile Road in Beaver Creek Township.

Fox Run can be reached at (989) 348-4343.

Grayling Country Club – The 5,800 yards of the 18 holes of the Grayling Country Club golf course are set along the banks of the AuSable River. Par for the course is 70.

The Grayling Country Club is located along the I-75 Business Loop in downtown Grayling, near Big Boy.

Forest Dunes Golf Club – "Only North America's Great Lakes region could produce the sand dunes, pine forests, birch groves and grasslands that authenticate the name Forest Dunes. Our Tom Weiskopf Signature Course design is a brilliant homage to golf at its purest," the club's Web site states.

Par is 72. Forest Dunes is located at 6376 Forest Dunes Drive, Roscommon, in Crawford County.

Vikings move to 4-0 in league play with Tuesday's victories

The Grayling Vikings improved their record in league play to 4-0 with two victories vs. the visiting Harbor Springs Rams during a varsity softball doubleheader on Tuesday night.

Grayling won 10-9 in the first game of the series.

Harbor Springs scored two runs in the top of the first inning with back to back solo home runs.

The Vikings scored one run in the bottom of the first inning. Madi Junttila walked and scored on an RBI-groundout by Caitlin Prosser.

The Rams scored one run in the top of the third. Grayling scored twice in the bottom of the inning; Prosser drove in Hannah Golnick, and Junttila scored on an RBI-single by Meagan Malm.

The score was tied at 3-3.

Both teams scored one run in the fourth. For Grayling, Andrea Malm doubled and eventually scored on an RBI-groundout by Golnick.

It was 4-4 after four.

The Vikings scored four times in the bottom of the fifth after holding Harbor Springs scoreless in its half of the inning. Prosser singled and scored, M. Malm Grayling led 8-4.

Harbor Springs rallied for five runs in the top of the sixth (final) inning. The Rams led 9-8.

In the bottom of the sixth, with one out, Stephan singled to score Prosser and Malm, ending the game. GHS won 10-9.

Stephan was 2 for 3, including a double, with four RBIs and one run scored. M. Malm was 2 for 4 with a double, two RBIs, and two runs scored. Prosser was 1 for 4 with two RBIs and two runs scored. A. Vikings sweep Hornets in baseball series at Harrison

Grayling posts one loss, one tie in league games vs. Rams Grayling High School's varsity baseball team swept the Harrison Hornets 6-1, 5-2 in a nonconference doubleheader played at Harrison High School on Thursday.

Levi Korneli was the winning pitcher for Grayling in game one, a 6-1 victory.

"Levi had a no-hitter going until the last batter, but gave up a hit before the batter was thrown out at second. He recorded nine strikeouts," Coach Bret Krabill said.

Kevin Harris and Michael Branch scored twice and Cam Wilson and Korneli also scored. Branch, Justice Junttila, Wilson, Ty Jensen, and Joey Latusek all drove in a run.

"In game two Junttila picked up his first career win as a pitcher and hit his first varsity home run. Zach Schreiber earned the save. All in all, the guys played well. We stole a lot of bases and some guys were able to put the bat on the ball. This shows the depth we have at pitching this year. We still need to work on eliminating walks and keeping our focus during the game. Next week we play a few tough teams and will need to be on our game in order to compete," Coach Krabill said.

On Tuesday Grayling posted one loss and one tie vs. Harbor Springs in a league series played at GHS.

The Rams won 4-1 in game one.

"In game one we struggled to get the bats going. They had a great pitcher and he was able to mix his pitches very well," Coach Krabill said.

Zane Tobin scored the only run off a lead-off double in the fifth; Branch drove him in. Harris also had a hit.

The two teams tied 3-3 in the second game of the series.

"In game two it was a strong pitching effort by Jensen and Harris to keep us in the game. We were down 2-3 going into the last inning. They brought their stud pitcher to close it out but we managed to push a run across to get the tie. Harris, Branch, and Junttila all scored, with Justice driving in a run," Coach Krabill said. "We played okay ball, but we need to start limiting the runs we give up in the first couple innings. At the start of the year, I thought Harbor was going to be the team to beat, and they lived up to the billing. Give our guys credit; we competed with them and still haven't played our best ball."

Grayling (6-5-1 overall, 1-2-1 league) will host Cheboygan on Thursday, April 26, at 4 p.m.

A LOOK AT OUR PAST FROM THE PAGES OF THE AVALANCHE

April 27, 1989 - The Viking band will host 26 high school bands this weekend for a state festival.

23 Years Ago April 27, 1989

In the early morning hours of April 17, deputies from the Crawford County Sheriff's Department arrested two men for the crime of Larceny over $100, a felony punishable by up to five years imprisonment. The two suspects in custody had cut through the fence at the Ammunition Supply Point at Camp Grayling and then taken several expended artillery casing out through the hole they had cut.

The Grayling J.V. baseball team used home runs and heavy hitting to open the season with two double header sweeps. They beat Houghton Lake 16 - 4 and 8 - 1 and beat Kalkaska 7 - 4 and 6 - 5.

All American Rodney Patterson, center, had his football number at GHS retired at a banquet on Friday, April 21. Mike Branch, GHS athletic director and Bill Klinger, Patterson's head football coach at GHS, retired Patterson's number in honor of his play at GHS and his performance at Hillsdale College that earned him All-American honors.

46 Years Ago April 28, 1966

Three fires broke out Monday in the county, one from smoldering brush piles on the power line extension near Four Mile Road and the Stephan Bridge Road fire which burned over about seven tenths of an acre it was estimated by Fire Officer Annis and quickly brought under control. Two other grass fires developed one at 1:20 p.m. Monday, spreading from a trash burner near the Don Sherwin home on Island Park Drive and another at 3:45 p.m. behind the John Bruun and Jack Alef homes on AuSable Trail from children playing with matches, with no damage reported on these fires.

The Grayling High School golf team opened its 1966 home season last Friday with the varsity dropping a 14 - 7 decision to a very good Petoskey St. Francis team. Dale Slusser and Fenn Welch each picked up three points for the Vikings, while Paul King got one. Slusser's 84 was low score for Grayling. Students from the Junior Band did very well at the Junior High Solo and Ensemble contest that was held in Mancelona on April 16. Betty Konvicka, James Beckwith and Gary Ashman received II division ratings for their performances.

69 Years Ago April 29, 1943

The City Fire Department had a busy weekend making runs to fires, the first of which was Saturday noon when a dog house and part of a wood shed was damaged at the Melvin Marshall home. The same day at 5 p.m. the department was called to the home of Adam Bielski. Fire crept along the grass from a bonfire to the house and up along side to the gable, damaging the place to the extent of $100. Easter Sunday at 11 a.m., the Airplane Spotters tower was destroyed and the roof of the city's No. 2 pump house was burned off. The fire is believed to have originated from a short in the light wires.

Environmental education combats 'nature deficit disorder' among children

by Sam Inglot

Capital News Service

LANSING — By the age of 5, the average child will have watched as many hours of television as the classroom time it takes to earn a college degree.

"In essence, a 5-year-old has the equivalent of a college degree in television watching," said Tom Occhipinti, the environmental education coordinator for the Department of Environmental Quality. "The youngest generation today is not getting outdoors at all. They've got too much indoors to keep them busy."

Occhipinti's program produces environment-related teaching materials for schools across the state.

Television, computers and video games keep young people inside at an unhealthy rate, Occhipinti said. Studies have linked the lack of outdoor activities to health problems such as obesity.

To address what is sometimes referred to as "nature deficit disorder," there are teaching supplements that integrate more outdoor education — or "place-based education" — into schools.

Getting more children to spend more time outside is a state, regional and national effort, he said.

Place-based education is about reestablishing connections with the outdoors, said Mark Stephens, an East Lansing hub coordinator for the Great Lakes Stewardship Initiative.

The initiative, established in 2007, has eight regional "hubs" around Michigan. It partners with schools and community residents to expand environmental education and stewardship through hands-on projects.

Students have done everything from build wood duck boxes for zoos to participate in stream velocity management projects to clean up riverbanks and storm drains. Such cross-curricular projects are intertwined with core education subjects like math and social studies.

The hubs get children outside working on projects that they learn from and that also benefits the community. In addition to East Lansing, they are in Flint, Traverse City, Grand Rapids, Hancock, Alpena, Ypsilanti and Muskegon.

Funding comes from the Great Lakes Fishery Trust, an organization that provides financial support to nonprofits and educators to preserve Great Lakes fishery resources.

Stephens coordinates the GRAND Learning Network hub. The name stands for Grand River and Nature Discovery, and it focuses on the Grand River watershed region.

The program starts in kindergarten, and the early start leads to civic-minded students and increased time outdoors, Stephens said.

Mary Whitmore, the Great Lakes Stewardship Initiative developer and coordinator, said outdoor activities and community engagement also indirectly address nature deficit disorder.

In addition, Stephens cited health benefits to place-based education.

For example, outdoor education tends to be dynamic, giving participants an opportunity to move around more and addresses the issue of obesity, Stephens said. And hyperactive students tend to be calmer when they're learning outside.

The results of the program have influenced some teachers who now start every school day with a short trip outside, he said.

At the national level, the No Child Left Inside Coalition, comprised of more than 2,000 business, health, youth, environmental and educational groups from all over the country, are pushing for federal legislation to allocate more funding for environmental and place-based education.

The coalition has members throughout the Great Lakes Region.

The efforts in Michigan are unique Stephens said. "There are no other states that do what we do. We're trying to change the culture of schools and it's really catching on and gaining steam."

Soccer team wins 4-1 vs. Oscoda

The Grayling Vikings played three varsity girls soccer matches last week, winning a nonconference game vs. Oscoda on Tuesday and losing two league contests.

The Vikings started the week with an 8-0 loss at Elk Rapids on Monday night.

"Elk Rapids outplayed us," Coach Craig Cobb said. Grayling goalkeeper Emily Wingard had 20 saves.

On Tuesday Grayling

won 4-1 in a home game vs. Oscoda.

"We came out and played well. We hustled, got to the ball first, and struck first blood with Courtney Hatfield running toward for the far post, receiving a cross, and knocked it in," Coach Cobb said.

Grayling led 1-0 at half-time. Oscoda scored first in the second half, tying the game at 1-1.

"Not too long after the second half kickoff Oscoda responded with a goal. From this point on we took over the game, scoring three more goals," Coach Cobb said. "Overall we controlled the tempo of the game, were first to the ball, and passed well. I was very happy with the way the ladies played. It was a good win."

Hannah Haven had two goals and one assist. Shelby Pippin had one goal and one assist. Tabatha Watkins had one assist. Wingard had eight saves.

Grayling lost 4-1 vs. the visiting Harbor Springs Rams on Thursday.

"Harbor used their speed to put two goals in, in the first half. They extended that lead in the second half by putting two more away," Coach Cobb said.

Shelby Pippin scored Grayling's only goal on a corner kick by Alyssa Morley. Wingard had 13 saves.

"Overall I am happy with how our girls played," Coach Cobb said. "It didn't come out the way we wanted; however, I am seeing great strides in our teamwork and level of play."

The Vikings (2-3 overall, 0-3 league) will play at Kalkaska at 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 26.

Golf team wins opener vs. league opponents

The GHS boys golf team won its season opener on Monday, defeating Harbor Springs and Traverse City St. Francis - both of which are league opponents - during a meet at Boyne Highlands.

Grayling edged Harbor Springs by two strokes, 361-363. St. Francis posted a team score of 372.

Thomas Burrell and Jake

Hinkle both posted scores of 87. Mason Krey had a 92 for Grayling and Louis Menard finished at 95. Dallas Johnson ended the day at 104 and Tyler Summers finished at 115.

"First league contest in very tough weather. Lots of wind and rain. All scores were high," Coach Dan DesEnfants said. "(Thomas)

played a great round, and Jake played great too. Lots of poise for a freshman. Louis was a key contributor today. His 95 was a solid score from someone we needed on the stat sheet. I've tried to stress to the boys we need four good scores to win, and today was an example of that."

The Vikings will play at Charlevoix on Monday, April 30.

JV Vikings post split vs. Harrison

The GHS junior varsity baseball team won one and lost one during a double-header vs. the visiting Harrison Hornets on Thursday night.

Grayling won 7-4 in game one. Adam Brill pitched for Grayling and he finished with 10 strikeouts in five innings.

Danny Schultz had two hits for the Vikings in game one.

Harrison won game two 9-7.

Brill was 3 for 3 with two RBIs for Grayling.

Grayling posted one loss and one tie during a series at Harbor Springs on Tuesday.

The Rams won 11-3 in game one.

The two teams tied at 4-4 in game two.

"Adam Brill had two hits and pitched well, going five innings, giving up one earned run," Coach Dan Mygrants said.

On Friday, April 13, the Vikings hosted the East Jordan Red Devils. The teams split the series.

East Jordan won 9-5 in game one.

Gunner Metzger had a three-run double for the Vikings.

Grayling won 8-6 in game two. Zack Cheney was 2 for 2 with three runs scored. Schultz was 3 for 3 with three runs scored. Brill was 3 for 3 with two RBIs.

The Vikings also posted a series split at Roscommon on Tuesday, April 10.

Grayling won 3-1 in the first game of the double-header.

"Levi Korneli pitched a gem," Coach Mygrants said. Korneli allowed one run on one hit and two walks while striking out seven.

Cheney and Brill had two hits apiece.

Roscommon won 16-2 in game two.

Cheney had two hits. Schultz also had two hits for GHS.

The Vikings will play at Cheboygan on May 2.
